Alliant - NG Energy Trading, LLC
Oklahoma City, OK

NG Energy, after the completion of several modifications to the storage and scheduling systems, has announced that it will be going live on both the physical and risk management modules for September's business.

Due to the nature of their particular business, and the ever changing marketing business post Enron, the GasPro system had to be modified several different times as their business needs were redefined.

With the latest version, NG Energy feels confident that everything they need to perform day-to-day business is present in the GasPro system and they will be ready to go live for September business.
