Data Management Solutions (DMS) Announces GasPro5 available over Internet Petris will host GasPro5 solution over the Internet

DMS has partnered with Petris to host the GasPro5 Gas Management System over the Internet via PetrisWINDS Now!. DMS has started focusing its marketing to reach a wider range of customers by "leasing" the GasPro system rather than "selling it outright". By allowing Petris to host both the application and the database, customers see a drastic reduction in the support requirements, both from their own IT departments as well as from DMS. Since DMS only has one location to update and maintain, it is passing its support savings on to the customer, making the monthly payments much lower.

"DMS made the decision to partner with Petris as a way to reach a wider range of customers" says Frank Pena, DMS President. "GasPro5 is a state-of-the-art gas management software solution that is now affordable to smaller companies, thanks to the ASP model."

The ASP model opens up a whole new marketing segment. Especially for those companies that only have a few employees or for those who do not even have an IT department. By using the ASP model, all the customer needs to have is an internet connection, and they can run GasPro (from anywhere). Petris is an expert in Web-services architecture and has a one-of-a-kind vendor neutral integration application. For more information about Petris visit www.petris.com.

If you would like more information on this topic, or would like to schedule a demonstration of the GasPro software, please contact DMS at gasproinfo@dms-houston.com.
