Data Management Solutions (DMS)

TO ASSIST TEXLA ENERGY MANAGEMENT IN MANAGING GAS MARKETING PROCESS

DMS proud to announce TEXLA Energy Management of Houston, Texas as their newest client

Houston based TEXLA Energy Management (TEXLA) chooses Texas based software solution provider, Data Management Solutions (DMS) to provide a solution to replace TEXLA's current gas trading software. TEXLA decided to replace their previous gas trading software because it simply could not meet the full range of their needs for gas trading, scheduling, accounting, and reporting. The GasPro software from DMS was selected because it is proven to seamlessly manage the entire gas marketing process from beginning to end—deal capture to settlement, while providing controls all along the way. Affordability, ease of use and internet accessibility were also crucial factors in their selection of the DMS GasPro solution.

Key to TEXLA was to select a software partner whose reputation was similar to their own, one of competence, reliability, integrity and consistency, and they believe they have found that in DMS. TEXLA was founded in 1993 by veteran resource trader Lacy Williams, II, and since then has been assisting independent natural gas producers to capture better prices and increase market share.

Successful energy marketing involves navigating an evolving a maze of complex market factors and price instability, and today's gas professional needs the right tools to accommodate these complexities and assist him through this process. TEXLA's staff represents a wealth of proven energy marketing experience, complimented with the skills to competently handle the aggregation of market information and product purchasing and then sourcing it at the best possible price. The TEXLA strategy includes equipping their experts with the very best tools to accomplish managing this process, and DMS is proud to have been selected as their software partner to assist in accomplishing their goals.
